

Code : 2658

PU ERH PASHA BIG TREE - Loose tea (0.500)

90°C

4 min

"Raw" Pu Erh (Sheng Cha) are teas that undergo a slow, "natural" fermentation. They offer a completely different aromatic palette from "Ripe" Pu erh (Shu Cha). This tea delivers floral notes, of jujube and rosehip. A slight astringency allows a long lasting in the mouth.

CHINA

Region : Yunnan province, Menghai, Xishuangbanna

Harvest : Hand harvested

Date of harvest : Autumn 2020

Garden : Altitude 1800m, from old tea trees

Grand cru

Dry leaves : Tight strips with white fuzz

Colour of the liquor : Copper

Main flavour : Astringent / Tannic (Intensity: Light)

Main aromatic family : Fruity (Intensity: Moderate)

Aromatic notes : Fruity

Attack : Floral

Middle notes : Fruity (Jujube), reminiscent of rosehip, sweet notes (caramel)

Persistence : Light astringency that gives a good long length in the mouth

Texture : Mellow

Brewing advice : This tea can be brewed multiple times. Infuse a larger quantity of leaves in a small volume of water (4 to 8g/15cl). Brew for a few seconds first, then gradually lengthen the brewing time (up to 1min/1.30min).

Cup : Fruity (Jujube), reminiscent of rosehip, sweet notes (caramel)

Specificity : Xishuangbanna is located south of Yunnan province, where the majority of the best Pu Erh are produced

Expert comments : I particularly loves Sheng Cha that reminds me of my trips in China. This tea makes me travel!

Moment for tasting : All day

Food Pairing : Tatin pie

Storage advice : Pu erh are: tea "de garde", they improve over time (if stored properly).